About Cedar Park

Welcome to Cedar Park, the heart of Texas charm and community spirit, where desirable neighborhoods and a business-friendly environment pair with convenient access to downtown Austin just 17 miles away.

Founded in the late 1800s and named for its abundant mountain cedar trees, the area grew around the rail line and later incorporated as a city in 1973. Today, Cedar Park has transformed from a rural settlement into one of the Austin metro's thriving suburban communities.

Cedar Park offers 46 city parks and nearly 1,000 acres of parkland with miles of trails, along with a rich calendar of community events. The city is also home to two professional sports teams, the Texas Stars, AHL hockey team affiliate of the NHL Dallas Stars; and the Austin Spurs, NBA G-League basketball team affiliate of the San Antonio Spurs, both playing at the H-E-B Center at Cedar Park, a premier venue for sports and entertainment. With a growing population, a strong economic base, and a reputation as a regional hub for innovation and quality of life, Cedar Park continues to be a destination of choice in Central Texas.
