About Dripping Springs

Dripping Springs (or “Drippin” to the locals) is known as the Gateway to the Texas Hill Country, located just 25 miles southwest of downtown Austin. Surrounded by rolling hills, spring-fed creeks, and scenic Hill Country views, the community blends small-town charm with a vibrant destination lifestyle. Some local treasures include the Dr. Pound Historical Farmstead, Dripping Springs Ranch Park, Hamilton Pool Preserve, Pedernales Falls State Park, and Westcave Preserve. Historic Mercer Street, beautiful parks, and a thriving collection of wineries, breweries, and distilleries contribute to Dripping Springs’ growing reputation as a premier Hill Country destination.

Dripping Springs earns the designations listed above through its Hill Country charm, thriving local culture, strong support for the arts and music, commitment to conservation, and a dynamic mix of tourism, business, and community development. With its rich ranching heritage, live music, outdoor recreation, and welcoming hospitality, Dripping Springs proudly lives by its motto: “It all starts here!”
